HOUSE OF PIES
1869 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90027 • Tel: 323-666-9986;
house-of-pies.net
Cooking Method: Grilled
Short Order: This classic diner makes an exceptional classic dinner with a Southern California touch
Want Fries with That? Yes, not too crispy, but still super tasty. The rings are on the bread, but also very tasty
Prices: House Cheeseburger w/fries, $9.30

Sometimes something wonderful is right under your nose. I had thought I knew my neighborhood scene pretty much backwards and forwards. My little hipster-made-good neighborhood Los Feliz is home to the solid burger at The Pix, a less-than-stellar newcomer to the Foodie and Eastside scenes on the outer fringes of the growing Umami empire. Otherwise there isn't much in the way of burger options. At least that's what I thought until a recent lunch excursion to a neighborhood stalwart that I'd somehow overlooked.

The owner has been at the helm for about seven years, but has embraced the character of the diner with the both. The uniform staff is chatty and friendly, the menu is standard diner fare—it was cheap and the place looked cool. The food wasn't anything to write home (or to Serious Eats) about. But that was then and nowadays House of Pies makes a truly great burger.

"House of Pies sits on the northern end of our 'main drag' of Vermont Avenue and has long been a hangout of the neighborhood cool kids. Opened over forty years ago, the classic (late) mid-century diner has the old-school sheen that attracts the old and young alike..."
